MEMORABLE DAY

Porto Rican Celebration of the Fourth

Country.

GOVERNOR ALLEN'S MESSAGE

Special Correspondence of The Evening Star. SAN JUAN, P. R., July 8, 1901. The one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of our national birthday was a notable day in Porto Rico, destined to be ong remembered in the island, mainly for the important measure enacted by the legislative assembly, but also for the magnificent celebration of the day in San Juan. The proclamation issued by Governor Allen on June 22 convening the legislative assembly in extraordinary session on July Fourth, for the purpose of considering a joint resolution looking to the establishment of free trade between Porto Rico and the United States in accordance with the provisions of the Foraker act, naturally invested the day with more than ordinary interest to the people of the island, who look forward with intense earnestness and satisfaction to the prospective consummation of this measure. Furthermore, it was determined to celebrate this great American day in a manner worthy of its historic Successful Celebration.

By request of the executive council, duly passed on motion, Governor Allen appointed an executive committee, consisting of M. G. Brumbaugh, commissioner of education, as chairman; Lieut. Colonel James A. Buchanan, United States army; Captain Lewis Lucas, United States Marine Corps; Andres Crosas, member of the executive council; Francisco Acuna, a distinguished lawyer of San Juan and the present head of the federal party in Porto Rico, and Manuel Egozene, the mayor of San Juan. The citizens of San Juan, without regard to party lines, and the officials of the insular experiment, or operated heartly with the government co-operated heartly with the committee and contributed liberally. The result was a great success.

By the evening of July 3 the executive mansion and all of the public buildings in the capital were beautifully and elaborately decorated with American flags and buntng, and throughout the principal streets Old Glory floated from every building, most of which were also tastefully decorated. This was a sight not heretofore witnessed in San Juan. Early in the morning of the Fourth the streets were thronged, enlivened with the music of a number of bands and busy in getting ready for the procession, which moved promptly at 9 o'clock, under the leadership of Colonel Buchanan, the chief marshal. As early as 6 o'clock a salute of twenty-one guns was fired from the battery at Morro, and throughout the day there was an aerial display of the American flag borne high in air by means

The Parade.

The parade and civic procession was very imposing, starting from the corner of Cristq and Fortaleza streets, passing down Fortaleza to the Plaza Colon; thence up San Francisco street to the Plaza of Alfonzo XII, where the procession was reviewed by the governor, who left the lines at that point and took his place on the reof the United States army, on foot, and one company on horseback, with their band at the head; and immediately following the naval officers and marines from the United States steamer Yankton; next in order the justices of the supreme court of Porto Rico and the district courts in carriages, followed by the chief of the insular with his staff and one company. After these came the heads of the several and the code commission, with their rethen the public schools of San Juan and Band the charity schools (boys and girls) of Santurce, in uniform, with the band of the boys' charity school, followed by delegates from Arecibo, Camuy, Bayamon, Rio Piedras and other towns, with the Arecibo band of twenty-two pieces; the city council of San Juan, with the mayor as chairman, and other municipal employes, and the various labor federations, in companies, with their distinctive banners. The heads of the caldia and joined the governor on the redistinguished citizens of San Juan.

Meeting of the Legislature. Promptly at 10 o'clock a.m. the two houses of the legislative assembly were called to order and duly organized. Committees from both houses were appointed to wait upon Governor Allen, who occupied a room in the same building (the Disputacion), and inform him that the legislative assembly awaited any communication he might be pleased to make. The two houses then resolved themselves into a joint sesernor, who was escorted into the hall of the house of delegates by a joint committee appointed for that purpose. Governor Allen delivered his address, or message, in a most impressive manner, presenting a very able and exhaustive review of the finances and financial condition of the his judgment, the propitious hour had struck for the legislative assembly to take the appropriate action, under the provisions of the organic act, for securing free trade between Porto Rico and the United States. After the governor had re-tired the joint session was dissolved and the executive council proceeded to its own chamber. ecutive council.

While the two houses were in session, deliberating upon the joint resolution, the national salute, at 12 o'clock, of forty-five guns thundered from the fortress of San Juan, venerable with at age of 300 years.

Rossy), was placed before Gov. Allen Providing for Free Trade With This for his signature, and as soon as the same was affixed the governor's salute of seventeen guns reverberated from the fortress of San Cristobai. At the same time, high in air, the signal corps flags of the international code, raised by kites, proclaimed the legend. "Free trade for Porto Rico."

Means Much for the Island. It is confidently believed that the passage of the measure, which will be surely followed by the required proclamation of the President establishing free trade between Porto Rico and the United States, will be productive of the best results. It will be gratifying to the people of the island, of all classes, as the consummation of a measure they have desired, and the recognition of a bond which makes them to this extent part and parcel of the great American republic. The wise, conserva-tive and dignified action of Gov. Allen has already silenced the unjust and uncalled for criticisms which some time ago proceeded from a few malcontents. The federal party, which heretofore held alopf, as arranged in opposition, has changed its attitude, and its ablest leaders have avowed their wish and purpose to support the administration. Gov. Allen's action in calling the extra session of the legislative assembly, and the result thereby accomplished, cannot fail to increase his strength and popularity with the people of Porto Rico. The joint reso-lution suggests to the President to issue his proclamation on July 25, which is a legally established holiday in Porto Rico. commemorating the anniversary of the coming of the American flag to the island. It is expected that Governor Allen will eave for Washington in a few days to deliver the joint resolution of the legislative assembly to the President.

Other Exercises of the Day. The two houses adjourned sine die shortly after 1 o'clock on July 4. The functions which claimed the remainder of the day were a base ball game, with prizes, at 2 p.m.; a patriotic meeting at the San Juan Theater at 4 p.m., consisting of patriotic songs and recitations by the children of the schools; music by the Porto Rican Regiment Band and the reading of the Declaration of Independence, in English, by Judge McLeary, the assistant secretary of Porto Rico, and in Spanish by Dr. Romero, the interpreter for the executive council; at 5 p.m. there were boat races on San Juan bay, with prizes; from 5 to 6 p.m. a public reception by Governor and Mrs. Allen at the executive mansion. Mrs. Harlan, wife of the attorney general; Mrs. Garrison, wife of the auditor, and Mrs. Elliott, wife of the commissioner of the interior, with other ladies, assisted Mrs. Allen in receiv-

Buchanan, commanding the military division of Porto Rico; and Capt. Sterling of the navy, accompanied by his accomplished daughter. The festivities of the day closed with a parade of an illuminated flotilla of boats on San Juan bay, and a grand display of fireworks at the Marina or water front, with music by the Porto Rican Regiment Band. The good order which everywhere prevailed was a marked feature of the Fourth of July in
